...and the gifts we share

POTLICKEER KITCHEN
Nancy Warner

When Potlicker Kitchen founder Nancy Warner ran out of fresh fruit during a particularly icy Vermont winter, she was forced to experiment with what she had on hand: beer and wine. Shortly thereafter, a new line of jellies was born. With very few ingredients, sourced locally whenever possible, Warner creates profoundly addictive jams and jellies that live up to their name. The Potlicker. Guaranteed to make you want to lick the jar clean.

RICHARD'S APIARIES

James Richard

Third generation beekeeper James Richard produces pure, raw Arkansas honey from his 300 hives located in the area surrounding Hot Springs National Park, Arkansas.

From native wildflowers, this full-bodied honey is strained only by gravity through cheese cloth to insure it maintains its' rich pollen content. A remarkable honey, from one of the nicest people we've ever met.

STUART & CO.

Michael Steifman

Brooklyn-based culinary genius Michael Steifman keeps it real while keeping it delicious. The founder of Stuart & Co. focuses on quality and sustainability, working closely with local farmers to source seasonal ingredients for his small-batch, artisanal grilling sauces and rubs. Choosing organic wherever possible, Stuart & Co. also stays true to their social and environmental commitments by donating to the New York City Rescue Mission and packing their products in reusable Weck jars.

CHOCOLAT MODERNE

Joan Coukos

Banker turned chocolatier Joan Coukos produces innovative, artisanal chocolates in a commercial loft in Manhattan's Chelsea neighborhood. Coukos uses Valrhona chocolate exclusively in her stunningly beautiful handmade confections, taking artistic inspiration from the work of Jackson Pollack. Chocolat Moderne. Edible Art.

Behind the brands of the foods we eat...

GROVE 45

EXTRA VIRGIN OLIVE OIL

Nena Talcott and Bonnie Storm

At a stage in life when many are looking forward to retirement, long time friends Nena Talcott & Bonnie Storm started a new business venture. Lucky us. Grove 45, named for the year the two were born, has raised the bar for California olive oil producers. Award-winning packaging and one great oil...from two great gals.

CASINA ROSSA

ITALIAN ARTISAN FOODS

Nicola de Laurentiis

Driven to tirelessly invent, improve and refine their unsurpassed line of Italian artisan foods, Nicola de Laurentiis and his wife Paola operate Casina Rossa in the Abruzzo region of Italy.

From award-winning pasta and pasta sauces to the internationally acclaimed "...& salt" line, everything from the Casina Rossa kitchen is guaranteed to please the most discerning Italian tastes.

REGINALD'S HOMEMADE PEANUT BUTTER

Andrew Broocker

Man cannot live by bread alone. He must have peanut butter. Inspired by a quest for a healthier lifestyle, Andrew Broocker crafts Reginald's Homemade using only the finest natural ingredients - and very few of them. In flavors like Apple Sin, Nana Honey and Bourbon Pecan, this is peanut butter Nirvana.

M. GILLES HERVY FLEUR DE SEL M. Gilles Hervy

Gilles Hervy, an artisan paludier (salt producer), and his family own two salines, or salt beds, in the Brittany region of France. It is here that they hand-harvest their precious Fleur de Sel. Hervy's decision to remain independent from the typical marketing cooperatives used by most paludier and his refusal to supplement his salt with that from other regions ensure a quality, consistent Fleur de Sel. This is, arguably, the finest salt in the world.

A TASTE OF 2 CITIES

Hot Springs, Arkansas. Saratoga Springs, New York. While geographically miles apart, these two historic cities have a great deal in common. Natural spring waters. Thoroughbred horse racing at the highest level. A thriving arts scene. Miles of hiking trails and recreational lakes. And a vibrant food culture supported by local farmers markets, creative chefs, restaurateurs and people who just love to eat.

Enter The Savory Pantry...where every taste tells a story. Representing regional producers from the Green Mountains of Vermont to the foothills of the Ozarks, we remain true to our passion of bringing people together through food. From Saratoga Springs, home of the world famous potato chip, to Hot Springs and our mouth-watering Arkansas peppered ham, we proudly share the finest culinary traditions from two of our favorite places. Health, history, horses...and food.
